REFLECTION

We could not have a better gospel today. It dovetails perfectly with our Amos passage. Just as the faithful at Amos' time do not notice the implications of their lifestyle, so Luke's rich man never seems to notice Lazarus "lying at his door." He's consumed with the quality of his clothes and the items on his banquet menus. Stray dogs pay more attention to Lazarus than does the wealthy owner of the house.

One of the greatest obstacles to our becoming other Christs is our complacency with the way things are, especially when others are being hurt by the way things are. I worry the risen Jesus might not give me a bye at the pearly gates just because "I didn't notice." - Father Roger Vermaalen Karban

PASTOR'S PARAGRAPH

My Dear Friends,

We have another moment this week to remember and thank all those who helped to build our church, which was dedicated July 17, 2017. On the wall in the corridor of the classrooms are the names of those who were so generous. It took us a while to complete this project – but now we have a visible way to show our thanks.

We received a letter of thanks this week from Catholic Charities for the gifts of money and groceries we received a few weeks back. We donated 2,829 pounds of groceries from the parish and 784 pounds of groceries from our school. In addition the parish gave $3,042 to help families in need.

CONFESSIONS: There will not be Confessions this Saturday, September 28, because there is a wedding. There will be Confessions on Saturday, October 5, at 10:30.

Father Donald Staib
