

NOTE FROM FATHER MIKE A Reflection Worth Revisiting

Have you ever felt like sometimes we live with one foot in the past and one foot in the future? We reflect on events of the past, lost opportunities, wounds, regrets, and things done and left undone. Then we may ponder the uncertainties of our future and what might or might not be. With one foot in the past and one in the future, we completely miss the present. We become captive to what was, oppressed by what might be, and blind to what is. When we do not live in the present, our life is diminished, small, and often empty. We are absent to God, others, and even ourselves. We are unavailable to those we love, to the needs of the world, and to the fullness of life that God offers us each moment. This fullness of life is a life of freedom: the freedom to be fully alive and to become more Christ-like. This can only happen here and now, in the present moment.

Our Lord comes to us in the very circumstances of our lives. He comes “to proclaim release to the captives, recovery of sight to the blind, and to let the oppressed go free.” In the midst of our circumstances, when life gets really difficult, it is easy and tempting to run away, to get stuck in the past, or fixate on the future. Yet, our Lord comes to us today, here, now. The only place we can meet our Lord is in the present moment, whatever the circumstances of our life might be. Let us show our Lord our presence, openness, and receptivity to His love and presence in our lives. Yesterday is behind us, and it cannot be changed. Let us seek Him today to thank, praise, and honor Him. Let us strive to encounter Him in every moment of every day that He gives us.

In His Love,

Fr. Mike Coveyou
